A wish for next life...

Dr. Brian Weiss, a psychiatrist and a past-life therapist, is the author of bestselling Many Lives, Many Masters. The book is about a true story of his patient and the past-life therapy which changed both their lives. When the traditional methods fail to heal, he turns to past-life therapy and finds that past-life events hold the key to patient's problems. During the course he realises that reincarnation is real. We keep coming back again and again. He has written few other books on the same subject. Dr. Weiss reveals in his book(s) how our future lives can transform us in the present. We have lived past lives and will live future ones. We learn through our relationships, which provide us opportunities for giving and receiving love and practicing compassion.

Yogi Sadguru writes in his book DEATH, about the relation between a Guru and disciple. He writes that if you have a Guru in your life, then if you are born again, you will become a disciple of the same Guru. Generally, it is only the Master-disciple relationship which gets carried for lifetimes. Because it is one such relationship which transcends the physical limitations and extends across lifetimes.

In the Mahabharat, when Bheeshma hears about Dronacharya, the legendary teacher of dhanurvedya, he expresses his wish to learn the same from him. Similarly, I have a wish to learn mathematics and science from Sir in my next life. Since in this life, I did not have the opportunity to learn the same from him. It seems certain to come true in what Sadguru and Dr. Weiss is saying.

Impact of Covid-19

The impact of Covid-19 is well known and the Trust activities were no exception. It affected the way we managed the activities. We managed to conduct the audits online via phone and distribute the scholarships. For some reasons, due to also Covid-19 interruption, I could not write the news-letters from the academic years 2020-21 to 2023-24. I finally managed to overcome the Covid-19 effects and writing this newsletter after five long years.
